In times of great challenge, like the ones we have had to face in recent times, homes once again play a key part in our lives. Now more than ever, the home becomes the place to live in the present, while imagining our future needs and rethinking spaces with a fresh perspective. For Colombini Casa, this trend translates into products made in Italy, using local, sustainable materials. We use energy responsibly during production. Attention is paid to every detail, underpinning the quality of every piece. We want our furniture to be not only beautiful and well made, but also functional and adaptable to the new requirements of storage, organisation of space and working from home. It is with this spirit that we have created the new collections, which provide a tangible response to the current practical and stylistic needs of our customers. We are renovating the home as the place where true emotions are experienced, where we feel safe and where can still interact with everyday life.

Production Structure.

Colombini Casa blends two aspects - highly industrialised processes coexist with purely artisanal manufacturing. Transparency, responsibility and a spirit ready for change means we respond to a market dominated by continuous evolution and challenges. As a family run business we continuously invest in the company.

Headquarter Rovereta 1

Four production plants located throughout the territory over a total area of 250,000 square metres with a lean and a strong just-in-time automated production. The largest of the factories occupies 120,000 square metres and is spread over five production floors, a real showcase of our top quality technological investment. We have developed an innovative vertical production flow where our machinery and technology connects and sorts products between floors. Innovation and organisation define a system where man and machine work in harmony. All the processes which transform raw materials through to finished products are combined with artisan upholstery using fabrics and leathers carefully selected and finished by hand to make sofas and armchairs for our different collections.
